

Founded in 1889

Kinjo Gakuin University, Japan's leading private women's university, has been growing in tradition since it was originally founded by an American missionary, Mrs. Annie Randolph, in 1889.

The pillars that uphold Kinjo Gakuin University's values are what make it so special. The university provides a unique opportunity to grow as a leader with an unprecedented level of support and facilities that enable women just like you to learn top-level leadership skills with the dignity you deserve. We're changing what leadership means and building a better society – and it all starts with you.
